The Society for Mind-Matter Research is proud to present the

Mind-Matter Prize 2019

to

Prof. Dr. David Chalmers

The prize is awarded in recognition of Prof. Chalmers’s long-standing and influential work on the place of consciousness in nature. With his seminal notion of the “hard problem of consciousness” he has contributed essentially to the rise of alternatives to physicalism in the study of consciousness from the late 20th century until today. His work emphasizes the inescapable significance of metaphysical reflection in scientific research in general and consciousness studies in particular, and it has inspired numerous scholars interested in the mind-matter relationship.

Award Committee

Society Board

(William Seager, Toronto) (Harald Atmanspacher, Zurich)